

Drawing:
Composite sequential sections. Ink
on mylar.

Design:
This small house located in a neighborhood on the edge of transformation, in a beachfront community on the edge of Los Angeles. Adjacent structures, which taken individually are quite unremarkable, together form an urban edge and demand an architectural response. The building is conceived of as an abstraction of borrowed neighborhood elements, and an experience of the light, view and climate that is fundamental to life at the beach in Los Angeles.